

THE ARIZONA SILVER BELT.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF GILA CO.

Saturday, October 6, 1883.

THE DEAR CREATURES.

The time of young ladies is divided into two parts. Half of the time they wait for the mails, and the other half for the males.

The moral side of it: "And, so Miss Fuller, you think Miss Johnson did wrong to go on the stage in tight?" "Indeed I do. Why, her limbs are as thin as pipe-stems."—[Boston Post.

A young lady who visited Saratoga this summer has had seven marriage proposals from young men of sense and wealth since her return home. She appeared at the hotel dinner-table one day in a dress costing not over 12 cents a yard.

A young girl was caught kissing her sweetheart a few nights ago. Her mother took her to task for such actions, but the girl silenced her by this quotation: "Whatever ye would that men should do unto you, do ye even so unto them." The old lady wilted. Memories of old were brought forcibly to mind.

"When does the honeymoon end, Mr. Johnson?" asked a sentimental young lady of a friend with whom she was discussing the subject of married life.

"I don't know," returned the practical Mr. Johnson, "but I've heard you could consider it over when a husband's pantaloons go more than two days without a full compliment of suspender buttons."

"Smoking may be a bad habit," he said, as he rode beside a pretty Philadelphia girl, "but that habit of yours is perfectly killing." The marriage took place the next day.—[Philadelphia News.

Uncle Remus on courtship: "Man want gal, he des got ter grab'er—dat's w'at. Dey may squall en dey may flutter, but flutter'n en squallin' ain't done no damage yit es I knows un, en 'tain't gwine ter."

A lady entered a ticket office in Toledo and bought a ticket for Milwaukee. She told the ticket seller that she had never travelled alone, and that her husband had always told her that she could not without trouble. She desired to disprove this. Accordingly she asked for all the information as to the departure of her train, the change of cars in Chicago, checking baggage, etc., and went from the ticket office smiling at the manner in which she would surprise her husband. A few minutes later the ticket seller found on the counter the ticket he had sold her, with the change.

An Engine House Pet.

Did you ever see a fire cat? "What is a fire cat?" "Come in and I will show you," and Mr. Mann, of Engine House No. 7, turned into the Chambers street entrance where the engine stood and called out: "Here, Tige. Come here, you rascal. Where are you hiding now? Come, Tige." Down from her promenade over the horses' manger scrambled a large cat of the ordinary black-fence variety, and darted towards her master, jumping from the pole of the engine to his shoulder, where she perched and contentedly purred, rubbing herself against his cheek. "There," said he, reaching for his pet, "there is the best fire cat in the city. What she doesn't know about fire-alarm system is not worth—well, I honestly believe that cat knows more than half the men employed here.

"When the gong sounds, the first upon the engine is Tige. She goes to all the fires. Talk of a cat being afraid of fire! Why, sir, it is all nonsense. That animal will go anywhere that a fireman ventures, and shows as little fear of blazing timbers as any of us. In the hottest part of the building Tige can always be found close to the pipemen's heels. You're not afraid, are you?" said he, tenderly addressing the cat as "old boy," though it was not a boy-cat.

"Intelligent? She knows more than any animal I ever saw. Just see her perform," and at the command of her owner, Tige went through a number of interesting evolutions.

While the performance was in progress the City Hall clock struck 5. Immediately on the first stroke the cat broke away and mounted the pole of the engine, upon no inducements could prevail upon her to leave.

"You see how she sits there," said a fireman. "She does so every night. At 5 o'clock promptly she takes up her position on the engine and remains there until 10 at night. Why, sir, the people in the neighborhood set their clocks by that cat, so regular is she in taking her place. For more than two years she has continued that practice. No, I can't tell why she does so. I know only the fact."

"Does Tige ever leave the engine-house?"

"Not now. She used to follow me about the streets like a dog, and she still follows me outside as formerly."

Where she came from originally and how she happened to take up her abode with the fireman are prehistoric incidents. N. Y. World.

Probably the strongest single electric light now in this country is suspended in front of the Record building in Philadelphia, some 90 feet above the level of the street. Its power is equal to that of 10,000 candles.

M. P. Delahaye has instituted a comparison of the relative merits of compressed air and electricity as a motive force for machines in mines. For long distances he says the latter has the advantage, and the plant required and the expense of maintenance are less than in the case of compressed air. In the coal mines of Zankerode and Appel, in Saxony, electricity has for some time been employed to work a ventilating fan and draw trains of coal. The fan is distant from the machine which generates the electricity about 2,500 feet, and there is an available force of 49 per cent. To work the electric locomotive 37 per cent is found to be utilized, although the generator of the electricity, in this instance, is 2,000 feet away.

Found in Noah's ark: An editor in Chicago recently ordered a pair of trousers from the tailor. On trying them on they proved to be several inches too long. It being late on Saturday night the tailor's shop was closed and the editor took the trousers to his wife and asked her to cut them off and hem them over. The good lady, whose dinner had perhaps disagreed with her, brusquely refused. The same result followed an application to the wife's sister, and the eldest daughter. But before bedtime the wife, relenting, took the pants and, cutting off six inches from the legs, hemmed them up nicely and restored them to the closet. Half an hour later her daughter, taken with compunction for the unfilial conduct, took the trousers and, cutting off six inches, hemmed and replaced them. Finally the sister-in-law felt the pangs of conscience and she too performed an additional surgical operation on the garment. When the editor appeared at breakfast on Sunday the family thought a Highland chieftan had arrived.—Anon.
